On November 13, 2009, the Commission found, on the basis of the information in the complaint, and information provided by your client, that there is no reason to believe Christopher G. Documents related to the case will be placed on the public record within 30 days. See Statement of Policy Regarding Disclosure of Closed Enforcement and Related Files, 68 Fed. FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

MUR 6196

RESPONDENT:

Christopher G. Kennedy

I. INTRODUCTION

The complainant alleges that a newspaper "article" provides information indicating that Christopher Kennedy became a federal candidate for the 2010 Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate for the State of Illinois and failed to designate a principal campaign committee with the Commission in violation of 2 U.S.C. § 432(c)(1) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended ("the Act"). The response maintains that the complaint relied on false information and that Mr. Kennedy was never a federal candidate. On the contrary, according to the response, Mr. Kennedy was merely testing the waters and had not made a decision regarding a potential senatorial run at the time the complaint was filed. Further, a supplemental response indicates that Mr. Kennedy announced that he would not enter the senate race. Based on the complaint and responses, the Commission finds no reason to believe a violation occurred and closes the file.

II. FACTUAL AND LEGAL ANALYSIS

Brian Daley filed a complaint alleging that a newspaper "article" published May 19, 2009 provided information indicating that Christopher G. Kennedy intended to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate for the State of Illinois. According to Mr. Daley, the same "article" in the Chicago Sun Times newspaper reported that

Mr. Kennedy entered into an agreement with consulting firm AKPD Message and Media (“AKPD”), had “already shot his first TV commereial,” and had entered into an agreement with Anzalone Liszt Research, a survey research firm. Complaint at 1. Mr. Daley alleges that the hiring of these two “prominent” firms suggests that Mr. Kennedy incurred expenditures in excess of $5,000 and should be considered a candidate under the Act, with the obligation to file a Statement of Candidacy and Registration with the Commission. Complaint at 2.

An individual becomes a candidate for federal office – and thus triggers registration and reporting under the Act – when he or she has received or made in excess of $5,000 in contributions or expenditures, at which point he or she has fifteen days to designate a principal campaign committee by filing a Statement of Candidacy with the Commission. 2 U.S.C. §§ 431(2) and 432(e)(1). The principal campaign committee must then file a Statement of Organization within ten days of its designation as principal campaign committee. 2 U.S.C. § 433(a).

However, an individual who has not decided to run as a federal candidate may “test the waters” before declaring candidacy. 11 C.F.R. §§ 100.72 and 100.131. The testing the waters excnption permits an individual to test the feasibility of a campaign for federal office without becoming a candidate and triggering registration and reporting requirements under the Act. Under this exemption, an individual may raise and spend funds in order to determine whether he should become a candidate. Testing the waters activities include, but are not limited to, conducting polls, making telephone calls, and traveling. Id.

The Commission has emphasized the narrow scope of this exemption to the Act's disclosure requirements. See Explanation and Justification for Regulations on Payments Received for Testing the Waters Activities, 50 Fed. Reg. 9992, 9993 (1985) ("The Commission has, therefore, amended the rules to ensure that the 'testing the waters' exemptions will not be extended beyond their original purpose. Specifically, these provisions are intended to be limited exemptions from the reporting requirements of the Act . . ."); see also AO 1981-32 (Askew). The testing the waters "regulations seek to draw a distinction between activities directed to an evaluation of the feasibility of one's candidacy, as distinguished from conduct signifying that a private decision to become a candidate has been made." Id. However, money raised and spent solely to "test the waters" does not count towards the dollar threshold until the individual decides to run for federal office or conducts activities that indicate he has decided to become a candidate.

Activities indicating an individual has decided to become a candidate include: (1) the use of general public political advertising to publicize an intention to run for office; (2) raising funds in excess of what could reasonably be expected to be used for exploratory activities or undertaking activity designed to amass campaign funds that would be spent after becoming a candidate; (3) making or authorizing statements referring to him or herself as a candidate; (4) conducting activity in close proximity to the election or over a protracted period of time; and (5) taking action to qualify for the ballot under state law.¹ See 11 C.F.R. §§ 100.72(b) and 100.131(b).

The response indicates that much of the information relied on by Mr. Daley to show that Mr. Kennedy was a federal candidate is false. Response at 1. Specifically, the response states that Mr. Kennedy had discussions with partners of AKPD, but "Mr. Kennedy has not paid or agreed to pay AKPD any consulting fees in connection with these meetings." Id. Further, the response states that AKPD did not produce a TV commercial for Mr. Kennedy, and Mr. Kennedy had not made any expenditures under the Act. Rather, Mr. Kennedy "commissioned a poll to assess his name recognition and viability as a candidate." Response at 3. The response also includes an affidavit from Craig Dooley, who identifies himself as a friend and advisor to Mr. Kennedy. In his affidavit, Mr. Dooley indicates that "AKPD has not produced a television commercial for Mr. Kennedy" and it is his understanding that "Mr. Kennedy intends to pay for the cost of the poll with personal or other federally permissible funds." Dooley Affidavit at Paragraphs 2 and 5. A supplemental response indicates that on August 18, 2009, Mr. Kennedy announced that he would not run for the United States Senate.

It does not appear that Mr. Kennedy engaged in any of the activities enumerated in the Commission's regulations that would lead to a conclusion that he may have gone beyond testing the waters and had become a candidate. There is no information that

Mr. Kennedy: 1) used general public political advertising to publicize his intention to campaign for Federal office; 2) raised funds in excess of what could reasonably be expected to be used for exploratory activities or undertook activities designed to amass campaign funds that would be spent after he became a candidate; 3) made or authorized written or oral statements that referred to him as a candidate for a particular office; 4) conducted activities in close proximity to the election or over a protracted period of time; or 5) took action to qualify for the ballot under State law. See 11 C.F.R. §§ 100.72 and 100.131.

The "article" cited in the complaint may more accurately be described as a column containing a mixture of information gleaned from unnamed sources and predictions regarding the future. While the column suggests that Mr. Kennedy "hired a production company and film crew" and had "already shot his first TV commercial," it provides no source for this information. In addition, the response indicates that AKPD has not "produced a television advertisement for Mr. Kennedy." The complaint was not completely clear with respect to whether another consulting firm produced a commercial for Mr. Kennedy; however, even assuming that the commercial was produced, there is no dispute that it never aired.

The response indicates that Mr. Kennedy and his personal advisors participated in several meetings with partners of AKPD to discuss "the logistics of becoming a candidate and running a campaign, the viability of his candidacy, and potential strategy should he choose to run for office." Response at 3. The response further states that "Mr. Kennedy has not paid or agreed to pay AKPD any consulting fees in connection with these meetings." Response at 1. Mr. Kennedy also commissioned a poll "to assess his name recognition and viability as a candidate,” and spoke with consultants. These activities all appear to fall within the testing the waters exemption of 11 C.F.R. §§ 100.72 and 100.131.

Furthermore, the supplemental response indicates that Mr. Kennedy announced on August 18, 2009 that he would not run for the United States Senate. While there is no information that any of Mr. Kennedy's activities fell outside of the testing the waters exemption when they occurred, this fact is consistent with the claim that Mr. Kennedy had never made a decision to become a candidate and, therefore, had no obligation to file a Statement of Candidacy and Registration with the Commission.

Because there is no information to suggest that Mr. Kennedy's activities fell outside the testing the waters exemption of 11 C.F.R. §§ 100.72 and 100.131, the Commission finds no reason to believe that Mr. Kennedy violated 2 U.S.C. § 432(c)(1) and closes the file.
